I couldn't speak at Babe's funeral. But, if you heard the Resolution, and you listened as carefully as I did, it celebrates a life well-lived and if you were as fortunate as I was to be the friend to this man, you'd know how much that we've learned from him and yet how much we could have still learned from him had he been able to stay with us. I won't go into his Legislative accomplishments. They are many and varied. You heard some of them but he was very proud of the fact that he tried to bring northern Legislators downstate and downstate Legislators and people upstate so, that we could see the diversity of this state that is part of our rich heritage and yet also is often some of the things that divide us. He loved to have committee meetings downstate where we could pick up, I remember one meeting we picked up Representative Young and Representative Jesse White at the Vermilion County airport and drove them down to Paris, Illinois where we had a hearing. It's about a 40 mile drive and once we got out of Danville and headed south on Route 1, Representative White looked out the window of the automobile and he turned to Babe and I and he said, 'Where the hell does everybody live?' There wasn't an apartment house and Babe explained to Representative White that it wasn't unusual for him to drive 150 miles or more from one end of his Senate district to the other and Jesse I remember saying, 'Gee, I can walk mine in a few hours.' He used to...the picture on the program that the Senate had for his memorial, and Mike and I were over there for that, shows him smiling and he always had a smile. And he used to get so upset when regional differences would divide us to the point where we couldn't discuss them rationally. And I know Mike and I, on more than one occasion, would be in a meeting and somebody would say, 'You know the problem with downstate schools, in all due respect, Senator Woodyard, is that farmers don't pay any property tax.' And Babe, who had copied his tax bill would very calmly pull it out and say, 'Well, if you'd like to trade property tax bills, I'm certainly willing to have you pay this.' They would look at it and say, 'I had no

90TH GENERAL ASSEMBLY
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
TRANSCRIPTION DEBATE

13th Legislative Day

idea.' And he'd say, 'You know, when these taxes get up to about $30.00 an acre, and you farm a 1 thousand or more acres, and then you add to that the price of feed and the price of seed and the price of fertilizer and the amortization of your tractor and equipment, you wonder why farmers are a little nervous today.' More than 14 years ago, he proposed either a local option income tax or a state income tax to move away from the property tax because he knew what was happening in rural Illinois and our lack of taxable property and our loss of population. Perhaps his legacy will be that in 1997, we'll actually get around to passing something similar to what Babe urged us to do so many years ago. But rather than talk about his Legislative accomplishments, if you'll bear with me, let me just tell you what it was like to know this Gentleman. There are several people in the General Assembly for years, and you know you've been here too long when you remember too many of these occasions. How much we miss the laughter of Myron Olson, for example, and how much I miss Roger McAuliffe and his ability to put everything in the proper perspective. In fact, I'd turn to Roger and often say, 'Roger, what are we going to do today?' And he'd say, 'Don't worry about it.' And Bernie Pedersen and Bob LeFlore and Dick Mautino and you remember all of the people you've served with, and you begin to wonder maybe you've been here too long, but you know, Babe Woodyard was such a remarkable, high-energy man. I thought he was indestructible and perhaps he thought he was indestructible because I look back now and maybe he didn't take as good a care of himself as he should have. When he ran in 1994, he didn't really want to. He wanted to retire. He had grandchildren. He'd like to get back on that tractor. And yet people prevailed upon him to run, yet again, and that campaign was particularly bitter, shall we say? And I think he made up his mind right after that campaign, because that was not his style, that he would not run again. And he announced his impending retirement just a month or two ago. He was the most civil man I've ever met. Many people underestimated him because he had a golly, gee whiz attitude. And if you'd see him out of the Chambers, he probably was in overalls or whatever, and he was always 'Babe'. If somebody came in and said, 'Senator Woodyard, how are you?' 'My name is Babe, just call me Babe.' And yet, let me tell you something, if you underestimated this man, he usually got the best of you because he was extremely intelligent. Businessman, a farmer, very proud of the fact that he was a farmer, very concerned about where we're headed with the divisiveness between our urban and environmental agenda and our agricultural agenda. But he was always one who could bring us together. An early riser, we used to have a breakfast club over in the Stratton Building every morning and it was kind of a contest to see, who could get here first, Babe or Myron Olson or Chuck Hartke or Larry Woolard, any number of people, who were in that breakfast club. And it was such a remarkable way to start the day because of Babe and particularly Myron Olson enjoyed a great laugh and they would get all of us in such a good mood that we could face the day with renewed vigor and optimism. But Babe had a great sense of humor. He liked to laugh. I remember when the gambling issue was before us several years ago, and I wanted to go over and talk to him, and there was a little slot machine on his desk, a little, red, plastic slot machine. I said, 'What is this, Babe?' And he said, 'Oh, I don't know somebody dropped it off, and

13th Legislative Day

STATE OF ILLINOIS
90TH GENERAL ASSEMBLY
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

13th Legislative Day

I can't even remember whether it was somebody for riverboats or against riverboats.' But he said, 'The only thing they said was this shows you what a fool's game gambling can be, so it must have been an opponent.' I said, 'Well, how does it work?' And he said, 'Well, you just pick it up and pull the handle and the little things revolve and I guess that's what a slot machine does.' And so I picked it up and pulled the handle and got squirted right in my glasses with a stream of water, which made his day. Another time I walked into his office and there was a beautiful large-mouthed bass, mounted on a plaque. I said, 'Babe, when did you get that?' He said, 'Oh, I caught that a couple weeks ago down in Marshall. Nice, isn't it?' I said, 'That's really beautiful. Let me take a look at that.' Well, as I get closer to it, I can see, boy, the taxidermist was really terrible. It didn't look very good. Kind of looked plastic to me. And about the time I got up to take a quick look at it, Babe clapped his hands or coughed, I can't remember, and it was sound activated and battery powered and the fish's tail would move and the mouth would go up and down. So, he got me again. And in fact, as I recall, I think we presented that to Mike and Mona Bass as a wedding present. And an appropriate gift it was. We were over here for a meeting one day and had to get back home to Chrisman and he was driving, and Babe usually liked to drive. He didn't trust anybody else's driving, primarily because he was confident you couldn't drive as fast as he could. And we were going through a little town. I won't mention the town because I don't want the police officer there who I'm sure is still on the force to remember this. But he looked in the rear view mirror and he says, 'Uh-oh, I think we're going to get a ticket.'

STATE OF ILLINOIS
90TH GENERAL ASSEMBLY
TRANSCRIPTION DEBATE

13th Legislative Day

February 6, 1997

The officer was very polite. Came up. Babe rolled the window down, a very polite young man. He said, 'Sir, you're doing 36 miles an hour in a 30 mile an hour zone.' Babe said, 'Gee, I didn't know, I'm sorry, I didn't know it was 36 miles an hour.' He said, 'Could I see your license?' Babe gave him the license and he walks back to the police car. And I said, 'Babe, you ought to tell him who you are.' You know, give him a business card. He says, 'Oh, I'm not going to worry about that,' he says, 'surely you're not going to get a ticket for going 36 in a 30.' The officer came back in a few minutes with the ticket written out and asked Babe to sign where he was supposed to sign and post his license for bond. Babe was always Babe. And I could tell he was doing a little bit of a burn and I was trying not to laugh. And the officer handed him the ticket, or a copy of the ticket, and told Babe how many days he had, et cetera, et cetera to show up or handle it in the mail. And he said, 'Say, do you mind if I ask you a question?' Babe says, 'No, no, that's fine. What's on your mind?' He says, 'That license plate you have,' he says, 'it says 53, an official something on it.' He says, 'Are you a private detective?' Babe muttered, 'private detective' and something about voting on Pension Bills the next 40 miles. He could be a formidable adversary if he thought you were wrong, but he would never be your enemy. He taught me that, and it was the most important lesson I think he ever taught me. No matter how much he might disagree with your position, if he couldn't go out with you afterwards and have a cup of coffee or breakfast the next day, he would say the process isn't worth it. One of the things that I think I will most remember about him is that he loved people and he used

90TH GENERAL ASSEMBLY
TRANSCRIPTION DEBATE

13th Legislative Day

February 6, 1997

things to help people. And every once in a while, and I called him a rural renaissance man. And he'd always say, 'What the hell is a rural renaissance man?' But he used to talk about how things have changed. And he said, 'I worry about those of us in public life who all of a sudden tend to love things and use people.' He was way ahead of his time in most respects. Let me share with you a note that I got from a mutual friend the other day. And it says, 'Rather than mourn the absence of the flame, let us celebrate how brightly it burned.' And how appropriate because Babe's life burned as brightly as anybody I've ever known or ever will know. And it was a life well-lived and more than 35 years of service to people. Twenty years on a school board. More than a decade on a fire protection district, as a trustee. A community college board trustee. He constantly gave to his community. And had you been at his service, his commitment service on Tuesday, when we drove up the road, nobody passed the procession. People going the opposite way pulled off the road and many of them got out of their car and stood there. That's the respect that this man had in his community. As Linda wrote, 'There are simply no words to describe our loss for everybody. You, Bill, have lost the mentor, a colleague and most of all a very dear friend. And in this world that has become somewhat strange, somewhat insane, far too violent, very often too cold and impersonal and sometimes a very lonely world, a friend like Babe Woodyard is precious.' Next to my father, Babe Woodyard was the finest man I ever knew. And if we could follow the legacy that he left us in the 18 years of service in the General Assembly, we would all be better for it and this would be a far better place. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Speaker Brunsvold: "The Gentleman from Coles, Mr. Weaver."

Weaver: "Thank you, Mr. Speaker and Ladies and Gentlemen of the House. It's tough to follow Bill but the feelings that we all have for Babe I think are because he was such a quiet, unassuming Gentleman. And I got first to know him because I almost ended up running against him. He was running down in our neck of the woods during the remap and in 1982, I had made my mind that I was going to run for the State House and at that time, they had the option of staying where they were and Babe decided he was going to continue running in our part of the district. So, I had a meeting with him and he said, 'Well, I'll do whatever you want, diddlee do.' You know how he does. And I said, 'Well, I'd be crazy to run against you, Babe.' And so I backed off and supported Babe and he turned around and helped me out the next time. But Bill is exactly right. Babe is probably one of the most humble, unassuming people you would ever meet. As a matter of fact, that's probably why he got along so well with the Chinese. He's the only person I know that could out-humble the Chinese. He was always self-effacing and I'd swear to God that he must have had an extra thousand of those cards printed up with Chinese on them because he loved watching people trying to read those things. He was a great trickster. If you didn't have a trick played on you by Babe Woodyard, you probably weren't watching close enough and Bill used to say that Babe is the kind of guy that would stand there and roll a corn cob with his toes while he's figuring out 10 different ways to get around what you've just done. But Babe had a lot of tricks. He had a lot of toys, an office full of them. I got caught by that same slot machine. He played it on everybody that walked in and I think you felt

TRANSCRIPTION DEBATE

13th Legislative Day

you had to play it even if you knew what it was going to do, because just to see Babe's reaction to it. But he had a basement full of trains in amongst his stained glass operation that he would do for therapy. He would go down there when he couldn't sleep at 2:00 or 3:00 in the morning and play with his trains or play with his cut glass. And every time I brought my grandkids up, he'd want to show them the trains and he'd say, 'Well, these are the trains that I set up for my grandkids.' And I said, 'Babe, tell the truth. You know, they don't get to play with them half as much as you do.' He says, 'Well, I guess you're right. I guess you're right.' But Babe was not only a great friend to humans but he loved all animals and he was very proud of even taking us out to show us the horses that he had out back even though there was one that he called a sucker. I don't know if you know what a sucker is, but it's a horse that for some strange reason has developed a habit of sucking on a fence post to get some of the sap out, I guess. He says, 'Well, I had to show that bugger not to do that any more.' He mixed up a batch of molasses and cayenne pepper and smeared it on the post and finally got that horse to quit sucking on the post. And one evening, we had been in a meeting and he said, 'Well, come on over to the house.' And so we're going into the house and he opens up the back of his van and starts unloading about 10 cases of cat food. I said, 'Babe, I didn't know you owned a cat.' And he said, 'I don't.' I said, 'What in the world you got ten cases of cat food for?' 'Well, I've been over to Sam's Club and I bought all this cat food because the neighborhood cats seem to like to come around.' And we go to the back door and there are five of them waiting for him. So, even though they weren't his cats, he

90TH GENERAL ASSEMBLY
TRANSCRIPTION DEBATE

took a great delight in feeding all the neighborhood cats. And I'll never forget, we were walking into his back door and I noticed there was a piece of obsidian, a large piece of what they used to call volcanic glass. And I said, 'Babe, do you know what that is?' He said, 'Hell no, I don't know. It just looked pretty, I just put it there.' I said, 'Well, that's from a volcano. It's called volcanic glass.' And so, I'll be damned if when my birthday came around, he didn't give me that rock. I don't know if it was joke, or I'm sure it was sincere, but he got a big charge out of handing me a rock wrapped up for my birthday. I think what makes, and has made Babe so great to all of us that knew him and such a great friend, is he treated everyone like family. He treated you the way he would treat any of his family. And it used to bother me a bit because when someone was thinking about running for political office, people would tell them always to go see Babe Woodyard. This is the guy who knows all there is to know about politics and you need to go talk to him. It didn't matter if they were Republican, Democrat, Independent, Communist or whatever, Babe would sit them down and give them about an hour's worth of advice. And it used to bother me a little bit that my opponents were going up to talk to Babe to get advice on how to run. But after a while, it occurred to me, that's just the way Babe is. It doesn't matter who you are, what you are, or where you're from. He's there to help. And so I think Babe isn't really gone. There's a part of him in all of us if we just maintain that kind of service and that kind of friendship and that kind of dedication to the people of our districts. Thank you."

Woolard: "Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I think that probably all of us have a story to tell about Babe. You know, several years ago I was elected to this Body and I was like all of you and I probably had as much pride and belief in myself as anyone could possibly have. And I came in and, you know, Larry Woolard's my name and I'm proud of it. And the first time that the Speaker decided to call on me, he said, 'We'll recognize the Gentleman from Williamson, Representative Woolyard.' And I said, 'Hold it, no, it's Woolard.' And it happened again and it happened again and I was elected Chairman of the House Ag Committee and Babe was the Chair of the Senate Ag Committee and we'd go and be a part of panels across the state with various groups and it was the 'Woodyard and Woolyard show'. And I would always correct them and say, 'No, my name is Woolard. I don't have a 'y' in my name.' Well, I found Babe to be the kind of person that was always trying to help. I don't care what it was. You know, you can talk about a great Representative being someone, who does something for the constituency that they represent, and that's right. But a super Legislator is one, who does something for people that he doesn't represent. Babe Woodyard fought just as hard for things that were important to me in Southern Illinois as he did for those people in Eastern Illinois that he represented. I can cite case after case that he stood with me. Two weeks ago tonight, there was several of us. The Chair of the Senate Agriculture Committee and Minority spokesman, myself and Representative Phelps, and some other people that were discussing an issue that was important to us. Babe Woodyard, and I'm not sure that many of you saw him in the last few days, but he had an impairment that he couldn't talk. But at that meeting he had so much to say that he dominated the conversation entirely because he wanted us to have all of the expertise that he had on this particular issue. And he laid it on the line pretty heavily to each and every one of us there. As we left that meeting that night, you know I probably don't remember ever being as compassionately told good-bye as I was by Babe. And I think he had a premonition of something to come. He had told us about the fact that he told the doctor who was the only one in the state that he could find to operate on him. 'The only way I'm coming is if you put me in on Sunday with a big screen TV so I can watch the Super Bowl and we'll do it on Monday.' And that's the way he did it. You know, I hope that Larry Woolard is mistaken to be a Babe Woodyard in the future. And the next time someone says Representative 'Woolyard' from Williamson County, I'll be proud to respond."

Speaker Brunsvold: "The Gentleman from McHenry, Mr. Skinner."

Skinner: "We've heard three instances of how Babe has brought people together. And one of the things that is not in the Resolution which follows on that theme is the Visitation Interference Bill that he sponsored in the Senate and got passed. He wanted the non-custodial parents to stay in touch with their kids. And for that reason passed the Bill. I would also like to add that he really did treat everybody like family. When I was running for State Comptroller, I got to stay in his bedroom. I mean it was really a shoestring campaign and you know I saved $30 bucks by staying in Babe and Mary's house. And, I will so certainly remember them fondly for that, forever."

Speaker Brunsvold: "The Gentleman from Madison, Mr. Stephens."

Stephens: "Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Every one of us who knew Babe Woodyard, has a special memory that the word earlier was used, I guess, that best describes him is, precious. Babe just had a way about him. How many times have we heard him say, 'Oh my,' in the special way that he did. He was a member of a group of Legislators and business folks from...that are actually from my part of the state and Babe became a charter member in what is still referred to as the Alton Club. We would manage to take two or three days every Summer to go to Missouri and float the Current River the way that any Gentleman would, and that's in an inner tube. Babe looked special in his inner tube. He had the whitest legs of anybody I've ever seen. Those legs just didn't see the sunlight, and he made sure they didn't. Sometimes he would just wear a pair of blue jeans as we're floating down the Current River in our swimming apparel. If he managed to put on a pair of swimming trunks, he would cover his legs with a towel, and we used to make a great deal of fun of him and of which he took in kind. He was the fisherman of the group. The Alton Club was a chance to float the Current River. We have a little fishing lake that we go to and Babe was by far the fisherman of the group and often even caught enough for us to have something to eat with dinner that night. But the highlight of the day in our visits to the Alton Club every Summer was the evening dinner. We would always fix it ourselves and we'd cook steaks over a grill or some other hearty meal would be prepared by us, for us. And Babe was always really anticipating these dinners. He liked to cook and then he'd help clean up afterwards and then sitting around the table with 20 or 30 good friends, Babe would get up and go to the corner of the room and bring out a bag and then he'd bring out the gifts from the bags. And these gifts were carefully chosen, individualized for each and every one of us. I remember him giving a former Member by the name of Bob Walters a briefcase that he made out of a pair of men's underwear. You just had to see it to believe it. It was a horn that he gave that same individual the following year, a horn that, kind of hard to describe, but it did play a tune and you had to blow it just right and sure enough Walters blows into it and winds up with a face full of flour and Babe's just beside himself with laughter and all of us wondering whether we should open our gift which was always carefully wrapped in newspaper. Just a special memory of ours. I will...I don't believe any of us will be able to go back to the Alton Club with the same feelings that we had before. I, for one, think that maybe it's a time that we don't convene that group anymore. The best advice I ever received on this Floor was from my Senator, whom I eventually replaced here and as he left me in my first few days here he said, 'When you look up at the board and you don't know what to do, just vote with Babe.' It's the best advice I ever got and, Babe, I hope I could, in just some small way live up to that standard. God bless you."

Speaker Brunsvold: "Mr. Black now asks that all Members be added as Cosponsors and moves for the adoption of Senate Joint Resolution #10. All in favor 'aye', opposed same sign. The 'ayes' have it and the Resolution has been adopted." Representative 'Currie' now moves that we stand adjourned until February 18, at 12:30 p.m. All in favor 'aye', opposed same sign. And the House does stand adjourned. We will allow perfunctory time for the Clerk for introduction of Bills."
